MERZBACHER IS IN LONDON.

ON GOOD TERMS APPARENTLY WITH THE NEW YORK LIFE AGENTS.

gren President Beers Seems to be Una-ware of the Defalcation-Vice-President Welch Says It's $370,000 All the Same. egylight, let l. to Tax Sex Printing and Publishing

London, June 13.-A cable despatch to the Times to-day says that the New York Life Insurance Company reports the defaication by Julio Merzbacher of the firm of Sanchez & Merchacher, who are its Spanish-American 70,000, and that Merzhacher has absconded. I have seen to-day President Beers of the New York Life Insurance Company, Merzbacher himself and Samuel L and William Dinkelspiel the agents of the New York Life. None of them will say anything about the matter except that it is a preposterous falsehood insignted by Merzbacher's enemies. I know of mrown knowledge that Merzbacher, far from being in hiding, has been a prominent figure smong the American business men in London and Paris for the last seven months, and is now on most intimate terms with President Beers and the Dinkelspiels in London. He lives at the Langham Hotel, where most American business men stop, and in Paris he has always stoppe 1 at the Hotel Continental, also a favorite American hostelry.

also a favorite American hostelry.

The contents of this despatch were communicated last evening to Vice-President Archibid H. Welch, who is at the head of the company in the absence of President Beers. He said that there was no bling to say further than that his statements of the case made to repeters of The SUN on Friday and yesterday were entirely correct. Mr. Welch had said in the afternoon:

When we first made the examination of Marbacher's books we found that a little more than $370,000 had been approprised, lots penny more was stolen. The store that the defalcation amounts to a million is made est of whole cloth. It may be that Merybers stole something from his partner, Mr. Maschez, and as that gentleman is on his way to Barce one, the new headlast way to Barce one, the new headlasters of the Spanish-American agreecy, the supposition cannot be proven just yet. I see that we have almost been charged with neglect because we din't discover Merzbacher's delacation before Mr. Sanchez did. As I explained yesterday, it was boasible for the default-the carry on his peculations for several months tefore any one suspected him. The fact that none of the directors of the company knew about the defalcation until the publication of the story has also drawn criticism on as. The directors are not bothered with such matters. The executive officers attend to them. As long as the company was not going to lose anything it was not considered worth while to bring the matter to the attention of the directors.

JOHN VAN COTT'S ECCENTRICITY.

dered the Finkes with Green. John Van Cott of Oyster Bay was born in 1810, and he always lived in the old frame cottage which his grandfather built long, long ago. The cottage still stands, a timeworn landmark, about a mile from the village, and commands a magnificent view of the bay. It was a tidy, comfortable looking house once, and the green acres that rolled down to the water's edge and back into the woods spoke of thrift and careful husbandry. But when John Van Cott's eccentricity came on the cottage grew shabby. Now the beholder wonders what keeps it together, and the farm is full of weeds. Somewhere along in the thirties John Van Cott married, and about forty years ago his wife died childless. Ever since he has lived alone. He was considered test fine horses, and never did any work. No me knows just how much money he had, but la fortune may be said to be about $40,000. all at once it began to be the talk of the village that John Van Cott had become insane. Bewould come to the store every day and buy alot of common paint. At first people thought he merely wanted to paint some part of his house, but when he came day after day and bought all kinds of paint and of all colors they wondered what he was doing. One day a neighbor called on him and spent several hours in his house, and that same evening the talk begun.

Br. Van Cott didn't know the first thing Mr. an Cott didn't know the first thing shout painting, but with an almost childlike pleasure in bright colors, as had covered his nouse inside and out-ide with fantastic figures. First he painted the cutside red, white, and blue. Thee he covered the red with circles and crosses and big dots of white and blue, and he big with similar designs in red and white. Bettled to paint an eagle on the white, but when he found that that was beyond his skill he contented himself with a big queer flourish sed a spiral. The work of ornamenting the migror covered a period of over twenty years. First he painted the walls all one color, then and a spiral. The work of ornamenting the interior covered a period of over twenty years. First he painted the walls all one color, then he painted borders of another color, and afterward filled in the borders with what he thought were tancy designs. But the temptation to paint the test of the will was too strong to be resisted, so he started to figure a beautiful scene on each. The first was a rainbow, of which ever alterward he was exceedingly proud. And well he might, or it was a truly wonderful raisbow, containing at least twenty different colors arranged in unusual order. On another wall he painted a snow storm, but when he had find-hed it he didn't like the color of the stow. So he painted a snow storm, but when he stow, so he painted beautiful red and green and yellow torders around every linke, and was delighted with the result.

The other walls were covered with scenes from animal life, but his animals were mighty greer. Whenever they had a tail it was carried through spirals, circles, and flourishes, and ended perhaps in a geome rich il gure.

When the walls were covered he took to the cellings, and after everal years they were in the same condition. Then every bit of househeld furniture was painted gay. So it continued until very recently, and every available inch of space was painted and decorated. About two rears ago Mr. Van Cott's health began to fall, and he took a man named Lamberson and his wife to live in the house and take care of him, After that he did nothing but sit around the house and issue to a music cabbinet that the Lambertsons hought for him. Gradually his mind alled, and he began to talk more and more about his wife who died and his hopes of seebagher again.

The day be ore yesterday he seemed a little wisher and more cheerful than usual, and surveyed his life's work with huge satisfaction. Then they missed him, and when emperwas ready at 6 o'clock he was not on hand, a most unessual thing. They called his name again and again, but he didn't answer. They searched through the house, found him in the attic, hanging to a ratter, stone dead, the hanging to a ratter, stone dead, the hanging to a piece of twisted cotton yarn around the beam, made the loose end into a noose, adjusted it around his neck and fallen forward, his feet on the floor. A docter was summoned, but death had come. Telenisty Coroner Cooley of Gien Cove held as inquest, and the jury found "death was caused by strangulation with suicidal motive in a moment of temporary insanity."

Mr. Van Cott has eight neithews and nicces who live in the neighborhood.

HE WILL LEAD THE ORCHESTRA.

Vinnest of the Paris Opera House Engaged Paris, June 13.-Mr. A. Vianesi, who resigns this month the position of leader of the orchestra of the Paris Opera to accept a similar position in New York, says: "I have already been in America, as rou know. I had the honor of conducting the opening performance of the Metropolitan Opera House in New York when Mmes. Nilsson, Sembrich, and others sang, and I have also appeared in Boston, Philadelphia, Chicago, Washington, Baltimore, Cincinnati, and St. Louis.

The position I am on the point of resigning has cained for me the decoration of the Legion has cained for me the decoration of the Legion of Honor and a place in the history of the twenty-six orchestra leaders who have held the post since 1669, when the Paris Opera was founded. The thought of revisiting the United States is very pleasant to me. for I cherish only the most agreeable recollections of my sojourn there.

"Musical art has reached a high degree of perfection in the United States. I know what American singers can do, for I have them before me almost svery night, and have had for years on the stage of the Paris Opera. I do not hesitate to predict that the opera-going public of New York will enjoy some fine treats next season, esnecially as those admirable artists, the brothers De Besske, are to be members of the company."

THE PANAMA CANAL INVESTIGATION. Shareholders Say They Will Prosecute De

Paris, June 13.- The Ectair this morning says that the Panama Canal shateholders are determined that unless the Government prosecutes M. de Lesseps on the charges they bring against him, that of misleading the sharehold ers in regard to the caual work, they will bring before the Correctional Tribunal of the Seine itar action against Charles de Lessers and

Mrs. O'Shen's Daughters Have Taken Their Father's Side.

LONDON, June 18 .- It is rumored to-day that Parneli's marriage with Mrs. O'Shea will take place next week. Parnell has subsided somewhat of late, the reason being that he is spending nearly all his spare time in the company of Mrs. O'Shea. She is said to look remarkably well by those who have seen her lately, and as being elated over the prospect of her marriage to Parnell. The daughters, however, adhere to their father, contrary to the prevalent im-pression, and will, it is stated, have no more to do with their mother after the marriage. As the mother is wealthy, however, and their father poor, cynical society whispers that they may change their minds.

Fights with Congo Natives.

Baussers, June 13.-The Bayanzi tribe, who inhabit a district on the west bank of the Congo, above the Kasal affluent. have for several months been improving every occasion to show their hostility to Europeans. They have fired upon them as they passed near the shore in their steamers, and in January last they as sansinated the Captain of a steamer belonging to one of the commercial houses, who was landing at the shore for the purpose of buying provisions. The Congo State decided that it was imperative that punishment be inflicted for these outrages. Capt. Van den Kerckoven was accordingly despatched with an expedition. He burned a number of the villages and executed a few of the ringleaders of these hostile demonstrations. Later the Bavanzi chiefs asked for a palayer with the agents of the State, when they gave assurances that hereafter they would respect the lives of Europeans and conduct themselves in a proper manner. A famous old figure in New York's theatres a half century ago was Benjamin Yates, who died on Thursday last in Mr. Sinai Hospital, 74 years of age. Mr. Yates was born in London and his theatrical career began when he was 7. He appeared then as a character dancer on the stage of the old Surrey Theatre. In 1829, while still a boy, he came to this country and introduced his specialty of clog dancing, which was something new to the New York theatregoers of that day, Young Yates appeared at the Richmond Hill Theatre, at the corner of Variok and Charlton streets, which had been built on the site of Aaron Burr's residence. The National Theatre, another of the old-time play houses, at Leonard and Church streets, was another scene of Yates's boyhood triumphs. In 1845 he started a dancing school in play houses, at Leonard and Church streets, was another scene of Yates's borbood trisumphs. In 1845 he started a dancing school in Military Hall, on the Bowerr, and many of the young beaus of that day went to him for instructies. He began to acquire a reputation as a ballet master at this time, and organized the ballet of 100 children in "Giucrells" at Niblo's. In 1854 he put "Punchinello" on the stage of the Old Bowery Theatre, the dirst time the pantomime was seen in America. At the Old Bowery Theatre, the dirst time the pantomime was seen in America. At the Old Bowery Theatre he won plaudits in his Army and Navy dance, a double dance of solder and sallor, in which the whole town delighted. At the Chatham Theatre, whose site is now occupied by a furniture house. Yates was associated with G. L. Fox, who became ismous later as a pantomimit. Mr. Yates had a part in the arrangement of the ballet in many large productions before the war, and was always in demand as a ballet master. He married Mile.
